The Circular makes it clear that electronic information on customs clearance will be made accessible to nationwide banks, a move to provide banks with a channel to inquire the trade authenticity, without changing the existing formalities for enterprises to deal with relevant affairs.

A&Z Legal Opinion

Mobike may in trouble with locking its bikes

Anqi Dong, Intellectual Property Department

Last month, China's bike-sharing company Mobike was brought to Court by Lingyun for infringing its patent rights with regard to cellphone-lock technology. Mobike is promoted energetically as a company with multiple IPs, particularly the inventions relating to the cellphone opening and locking system, and the GPS system. It is said that Mobike's company image and business may be affected greatly if its cellphone opening and locking system is held to constitute an infringement and Mobike is ordered to stop using it immediately. In such a case, all the orange and silver bikes may disappear from the market and go back to the factory to change their locks. Read More.
