

Shanghai Latest Quarantine Measures

With the current rise of COVID-19 cases outside China and, consequently, increasing the numbers of cases in Shanghai, stricter quarantine measures are taken. Measures are constantly being updated according to COVID-19 developments. Stay tune to local measures if you, your family, colleagues and friends are coming back to Shanghai during March.

According to the latest news of Shanghai Leading Group for COVID-19 on March 17th, 2020, stricter quarantine measures are taken for passengers from the coronavirus affected countries (South Korea, Italy, Iran, Japan, France, Spain, Germany and the United States, Britain, Switzerland, Sweden, Belgium, Norway, the Netherlands, Denmark and Austria).

The following sheet is the comparison between the Previous Measures and the Latest Measures on March 17th:

	The Previous Measures	The Latest Measures
Quarantine at Home	Quarantined people can reside with non-quarantined people in one house if the house is suitable for the quarantine.	Quarantined people cannot reside with non-quarantined people in one house unless non-quarantined people also agree to undergo 14-days quarantine at home. All family members undergoing 14-day quarantine at home can reside in one house.
Methods for Distribution of Passengers from airport	Gather at the designated distribution center and take the special bus assigned by the corresponding district of passengers' fixed accommodation or the private cars to home .	Passengers will be transferred to temporary concentration places designated by the corresponding district of passengers' fixed accommodation by the special bus assigned by the corresponding district.
Nucleic Acid Tests	No requirements for all passengers to take nucleic acid tests.	Passengers must take nucleic acid tests at the temporary concentration places. If the test results are negative, passengers will be transferred to their home and undergo a 14-day quarantine. If the test results are positive, passengers will be transferred to designated medical treatment institutions.

Examination of the House for Quarantine	No requirements for the community management to check whether the house is suitable for quarantine. However, there are standards for the house: An independent room in the house that allows passengers to avoid any type of contact with the rest of the family members and housemates. The room and restroom cannot be connected to the living room and other spaces where housemates and family members' daily activities take place. Rooms and restrooms must have doors that can be locked and have good ventilation and in the downwind direction of the rest of the rooms used by the other residents.	During the waiting period of nucleic acid test results, the community management will check whether the house meets the standards of quarantine (whether there are other family members in the house). If the house fails to meet the standards of quarantine, passengers will be transferred to the designated places for 14-day quarantine.
Management of Quarantine at Home	No specific requirements.	During the passengers' quarantine at home, the district's public security and health department will implement the strict measures to prevent the quarantined passengers from leaving the house, and the violators will be punished.
The Expenses for Quarantines at Designated Places	No specific Requirements.	Passengers will be required to cover their accommodation and food expenses during their quarantine at the designated places. The daily expense 200 RMB/400 RMB per person could be chosen.
